Former director of the Carreon foundation to be honored

Martin Martinez, former executive director for more than 15 years of the Reynaldo J. Carreon M.D. Foundation, will be honored today at a luncheon at Macario's Grill in Indio.

During his tenure, more than $1 million in college scholarships were awarded to minority high school students.

In October, Martinez stepped down as executive director for health reasons. Former KMIR 6 weekend anchor/reporter Gloria Margarita now serves as executive director.

Past and current board members of the foundation and Lucila Carreon, the wife of the late Dr. Reynaldo Carreon, are expected to attend the luncheon.
